Dear Sir/Madam,

SIA CARGO MANAGES SILKAIR AND NOKSCOOT CARGO CAPACITY

Singapore Airlines Cargo is pleased to announce that we will be managing the cargo capacity on flights operated by SilkAir from April 2015, and through an interline arrangement, also flights operated by NokScoot from May 2015.

SilkAir is an established and fully-owned subsidiary of Singapore Airlines that operates more than 350 flights a week to 48 destinations, across Asia and Australia from its base in Singapore. Services to Cairns, Australia are planned from May 2015.

NokScoot is a new low-cost airline based in Bangkok (DMK), Thailand operating wide-body B777-200 aircraft. Subject to regulatory approval, NokScoot plans to commence commercial flights in May 2015, operating services between Don Mueang Airport (DMK) and Nanking (NKG) in China, Tokyo (NRT) and Osaka (KIX) in Japan, and Seoul (ICN), Korea.

What does this mean for you?

- Wider network of more than 110 destinations that offers you multiple choice of flight frequencies through both Singapore and Don Mueang airports.
- Seamless transfer and common service standards, including the same short connecting times for your shipments between flights operated by SIA Cargo, Scoot, SilkAir and NokScoot -- airlines within the Singapore Airlines Group.
- For your convenience, SIA Cargo air waybills, including e-air waybills, are to be used on flights operated by Scoot, SilkAir and NokScoot. The operating carrier code is "MI" for SilkAir and "XW" for NokScoot.
- You also have the convenience of using the same online platform such as the SIA Cargo shipment tracking service through the SIA Cargo website, www.siacargo.com, and online booking platforms such as CCN Hub and other cargo community systems to make reservations and other transactions. You may also track your shipments on the SIA Cargo mobile application from your smartphone.
- To handle all cargo sales, reservations and service matters, you now have a common point of contact at SIA Cargo.

We are looking forward to seeing growth in cargo traffic to the emerging markets and also established markets through the continued support from our business partners.

We can now offer cargo capacity to you for the following new destinations and also additional capacity to destinations (*) that are already part of our network through our new partnerships with SilkAir and NokScoot:
